

Contemporary Cut Paper Workshop 當代剪紙班

What is contemporary cut paper? This workshop introduces participants to the evolution of paper cutting from a traditional Chinese folk craft to a contemporary fine art genre practiced by artists around the world. Participants will learn various basic patterns and cutting techniques, while exploring disparate image sourcing strategies to aid creative ideation. The workshop seeks to prepare and guide participants through demonstration and a hands-on approach to develop their own thematic cut paper artworks.

Ms Bovey Lee is an artist known for her highly intricate cut paper. She has exhibited widely at numerous museums, galleries, and cultural institutions across the US, Europe, and Asia. Her works are represented in many museum and corporate collections. Lee holds dual MFA degrees from UC Berkeley in painting and drawing, and from the Pratt Institute, New York, in digital media. She currently lives and works in Los Angeles.
