Service Project

What will students do to serve?	Students who enrol in this subject will also join a leadership programme named "Digital Leadership", co-organized by Service-Learning and Leadership Office (SLLO). This programme focuses on developing global leadership and cultural sensitivities in the context of cross-disciplinary appropriate technology. Students from PolyU will work together with peers from the University of Maryland (UMD) and other overseas universities to co-design and build a virtual world to present a social issue. The issue may relate, but not limited to, the ethnic minority or refugees in Hong Kong. During the services, students need to interview the clients and present their story on a virtual platform (e.g. Gather.Town), and also may plan different technical-related events/activities to serve them. Students will learn about the concepts of socially responsible leadership and intercultural competencies and demonstrate these competencies in practice. At the same time, they will also be learning about different principles of appropriate technology. During semester 1, 4 to 5 virtual classes will be arranged with the overseas universities, and the classes may be conducted in the early morning on Saturday.
